

Communication Skills

Become a Professional Driver

Women With Wheel

Programme Purpose and Importance

Purpose

To strengthen the communication and listening skills of professional women drivers, so they can build a relationship of trust with the client.

Importance

This two-day programme will make you not just a driver, but a confident professional.

Why It Matters

Every interaction on the road and with the client shapes your identity and your organisation's reputation.

What Is Communication?

Communication is not just speaking — it means conveying your message to others the right way and carefully understanding what they say. Good communication is always two-way.

Speaking

Saying what you mean in clear, simple and calm words.

Listening

Listening to the other person with full attention, without interrupting.

Understanding

Grasping the true meaning and confirming it by repeating back.

The Communication Process

1. Sender

The one who sends the message.

2. Message

What is actually said.

3. Medium

The channel that carries it — speech, phone or gestures.

4. Receiver

The one who hears and understands the message.

Feedback: The receiver's response travels back to the sender — this is what completes communication.

Effective communication happens only when the message is clear, the right medium is chosen, and the listener understands it correctly.

The Communication Cycle and Signals

Signal

The car's indicator is a message — it tells others your intent.

Feedback

The vehicle behind slowing down shows that your message was understood.

Warning

If the indicator (communication) is faulty, an accident (a misunderstanding) can happen.

The Communication Process: Through a Driver's Eyes

Every moment of driving is really an act of communication:

- ✓ Sender: You — the one expressing intent
- ✓ Message: The indicator, horn or a hand signal
- ✓ Medium: The road, the lights and the way you signal
- ✓ Receiver: Other drivers and pedestrians
- ✓ Feedback: Their response — stopping or giving way

Feedback — What Completes Communication

Feedback is the confirmation that your message was understood correctly. Without feedback, any communication stays incomplete.

Ask for Feedback

After saying something, ask — “Is that clear?” This prevents misunderstanding.

Give Feedback

When someone tells you something, confirm with a nod or by saying “Yes, understood.”

Confirm

Repeat key instructions to show that you have understood them correctly.

Communication Problems Arise When...

Not Listening Carefully

When we keep thinking of a reply instead of actually listening.

Anger or Stress

Words spoken in anger are often misunderstood.

Preconceived Notions

Forming an opinion about someone in advance.

Different Mindsets and Backgrounds

Different experiences give the same words different meanings.

Not Understanding the Language

A difference in words or language muddles the message.

Barriers to Communication — Bumps in the Road

Arguments and Quarrels

The real point gets lost in raised voices and arguments.

Many People Talking at Once

When everyone talks together, no one hears anyone.

A Closed Mind

Refusing to hear a new idea or suggestion.

Different Meanings for Words

The same word can mean different things to different people.

Irresponsible Behaviour

Not taking things seriously breaks trust.

Four Major Barriers

Watch out for these four things — they block good communication the most.

Noise

Traffic and crowd noise drown out the message.

Prejudice

A pre-formed opinion stops you from hearing the truth.

Mood

Tiredness or a bad mood spoils the conversation.

Language

A difference in language creates misunderstanding.

What Happened

The client asked the driver to 'wait' and then 'park.' The driver did not listen carefully and drove straight into the parking area.

Result: The client could not find the driver, and the organisation lost that client.

Lesson

One small listening slip can cause a big loss. Listen to the instruction, repeat it and confirm — only then begin.

When Communication Is Weak

A small misunderstanding slowly grows into a big problem:

Clients Get Upset

When the message does not get through, the client grows frustrated.

Misunderstandings Grow

A small matter turns into a big tangle.

Trust Breaks Down

Repeated slips weaken the relationship.

Both Work and Respect Are Lost

The result — lost work and a damaged reputation.

So it is essential to handle every conversation with care and respect.

Habits of Good Communication

A

Using simple language

Making eye contact

Listening carefully

Speaking calmly and politely

Respect for everyone

Listening — The Most Important Skill

“Listening matters more than speaking.”

A good driver listens first, then speaks.

- Careful listening prevents mistakes and misunderstandings.
- The client feels that what they say is valued.
- The right time, place and instructions become clear.
- Trust is built, which brings repeat work.

Listening Technique: Stop • Look • Note

STOP

Immediately stop whatever else you are doing (like checking your phone) and give your full attention.

LOOK

Look towards the speaker and make eye contact.

NOTE

Note down the important details — time, place and instructions.

Body Language and Eye Contact

Your body language often speaks louder than your words. Good posture and gestures build trust and a professional image.

Eye Contact

Meeting someone's eyes while talking shows trust and attention.

A Gentle Smile

A smile puts people at ease and reduces tension.

Upright, Calm Posture

Sitting upright with calm body language conveys confidence.

Use Clear and Simple Language

Use short, easy words

Avoid difficult or technical terms.

Repeat the key points

Say the important instructions clearly once more.

Confirm what you heard

Confirm by asking: “You said ..., is that right?”

Speak clearly and slowly

Speaking in a hurry leaves the message incomplete.

Clear words, kept few — that is the mark of professional communication.

Communication Tips for Professional Drivers

Greet the client politely and with a smile.

Listen to instructions with full attention, repeat them — then start driving.

If you are going to be late, inform them in advance.

Stay calm in every situation; avoid arguments and raised voices.

On the phone, speak clearly, briefly and courteously.

Keep up respect with every client and colleague.

Summary at a Glance

Topic	Key Point
The Communication Process	Sender → Message → Medium → Receiver → Feedback
Four Major Barriers	Noise, Prejudice, Mood and Language
The Most Vital Skill	Careful listening — even more than speaking
Listening Technique	Stop • Look • Note
Good Habits	Simple language, eye contact, respect, a calm voice
The Cost of Weak Communication	Misunderstanding, broken trust, loss of work and respect

Thank You!

Good communication makes you not just a driver, but a trusted professional.

Speak Clearly • Listen Carefully • Show Respect

